

How to get free software with Trialpay

Last year when Trialpay started to get more popularity, I went ahead and gathered a list of about 280 TrialPay offers, meaning programs and services that you could get for free by testing other offers they had from advertisers.

TrialPay is a method that allows you as a customer interested in product X to get it for free by subscribing or (optionally) purchasing a product from one of their sponsors. Practical example: You can get a free WinRAR license (with the same rights as a user that buys directly from WinRAR) by signing up for a 30-day trial on Stamps.com. Of course that these offers from advertisers vary a lot depending on your country (there can be more than 100 offers for people in USA, whereas 1-2 offers for people in Romania).

The principle of Trialpay didn't change, just that they added more products, and there are now more advertisers:

- you see that a product/service you want to buy offers a "Get it free with Trialpay" option and click on that link where you'll see the Trialpay purchase page
- next you'll see what offers are available from advertisers for your country; if you're from US/UK, there's hundreds of advertisers to choose an offer from; and choose carefully, because you'll might find an offer that doesn't require you to purchase anything, simply signing up for a service

The screenshot shows the Trialpay website interface. On the left, there is a sidebar titled "Offers by category" with links for "Most Popular", "Shopping (6)", and "All Offers" (which is selected). The main content area is titled "All Offers" and includes a checkbox for "Only show offers that credit instantly". Below this, it says "Displaying 6 offers on this page". The first offer is for "PC Booster", which includes a small image of the software box and a description: "Boost Your PC in 2 Minutes. Make Your PC Run Faster In 2 Minutes: Award-winning PC Booster speeds up your PC and prevent errors like computer crashes, windows freezes and slow boot up. Faster PC performance guaranteed. PC Booster starts at USD$29.95". It also states "Credits instantly" and has a "Continue" button. The second offer is for "STOPzilla Anti-Spyware", which includes a logo with a green monster and a description: "Sign up for a subscription to the award-winning STOPzilla anti-Spyware software. Real-Time Protection; STOPzilla successfully detects, blocks, and removes Spyware, Adware, and malicious programs of all kinds before they attack your computer."

- after you complete the details for that offer (they guide you what to do), you'll receive the key for that product

Is TrialPay a scam? Far from it, and the fact that they are backed up by investors behind Skype, Google and Akamai (info here) looks promising for the growth of this system.

Now, I always wondered how many offers are there, and why they don't have it all in one place. Well, they don't have it all in one place publicly available because some of the merchants don't want to make their Trialpay offer too visible since they prefer to obtain the entire price for their product. Because yes, when they use Trialpay they might get somewhere from $10 to a couple of hundreds for a license. Anyway, since I last did the huge Trialpay offers list, a couple more offers showed up, so below you can find a list of almost 400 Trialpay offers, along with the name of the company that develops that specific product. To visit the TrialPay purchase page for a product click on Get it free with Trialpay link.
